

When you drive distracted, you're barely there.

Thirty percent of Americans drive while distracted. Distractions play a key role in pedestrian and bicycle safety on our roads. Stay alert, don't drive distracted, and watch for pedestrians and bicyclists.

Distracted driving is anything that diverts your attention from the task of driving.

Can you send that list of distracted driving examples?

Sure! YOU are a distracted driver if you:

- Text while Driving
- Use a Cell Phone while Driving
- Use Social Media while Driving
- Email while Driving
- Eat or Drink while Driving
- Manage GPS while Driving
- Apply Makeup while Driving

Thank you. Also, is it true distracted drivers are more impaired than intoxicated drivers?

That's what the research says. So remember, keep your on the road, your on the wheel, and your on driving.
